

reporter: A Question Of Style

Celebrity stylist
Karen Ng answers
your fashion queries

Q I have a top-heavy figure — buxomy with wide shoulders and big arms. Thankfully, my legs are relatively shapely. How should I dress to downplay my top? I am a tad tired of wearing shirts and cardigans all the time. — Rachel

Most women will kill to have your nice legs and enviable bustline. It sounds like your arms and shoulders are always covered up. For a change, go for sleeveless or cap-sleeved tops with a deep V-neck front. Complement it with long, sautoir necklaces. A sexy neckline and accessories will draw attention to your décolletage and the centre of your body, taking the focus away from your shoulders and arms.

Halter tops are also a great option for wide shoulders and big busts as they give the illusion of a narrower torso. Since you have nice legs, you should wear short skirts with sexy stilettoes as this will shift the gaze away from your upper body, and create a lean and sleek silhouette. •

Karen Ng runs Glitz, an image consultancy at #13-05B Ngee Ann City Tower A, Tel: 6732-1141, E-mail: image@glitzbykaren.com

Salvatore Ferragamo

Celine

Emilio Pucci

Salvatore Ferragamo

Yves Saint Laurent

Salvatore Ferragamo

Blumarine

Bottega Veneta

Congratulations!

Rachel, you have won for yourself a pair of Lovita Heart Diamond Earrings worth $338 from Soo Kee Jewellery.

WANT EXPERT FASHION ADVICE?

Write to style@mediacorp.com.sg with your question and put "A Question Of Style" in the subject heading. Include your I/C and contact numbers. You get savvy advice and could win a great prize.

