

Fresh-faced

How to look like Rui En, Jeanette Aw... or Li Nanxing.

Skin is the largest organ of the body, and it's also the reason human traffic came to a standstill outside the True Colours Beauty store at Ngee Ann City recently.

Fans thronged the mall to catch a glimpse of Jeanette Aw and Rui En, skincare and make-up brand Izu's two newest ambassadors.

Long-time spokesperson Li Nanxing (skincare rather than make-up, we presume) sprung a surprise visit as well, though he wasn't the only one crashing the party. Chen Liping also made an appearance to support hubby Rayson Tan, who was hosting the event.

► Call him Mr Vain: He used to wear his 'bo-chup king' tag like a badge of honour, but is now proud to be vain. "I need to take care of my skin because sometimes at shoots, we're under the sun a lot," says Nanxing.

But it was indeed the thorn among the roses who stood out for looking so studly at 44. What's your secret, Mr Li? "I don't stay out too late," says Nanxing. "I always take more water, fruit juices and vitamins. You must have self-discipline." Yes sir, we're on it.

▲ Fuss-free: "If I'm not working, I won't put on much make-up, only sunscreen," says Rui En. "But I can't live without mascara. If you don't wear anything else on your face, just curl your lashes and use mascara. That's the one thing that will make a difference."

▲ Front row access: Rui En's fans made themselves seen and heard at the event by occupying prime spots just below the stage. Will Jeanette's fans please stand up?