

"Hi, are you lost? Halloween's in October though."

Purple tights, turquoise runners, leftover corsage from a wedding and your mother's handbag. Oh boy.

(Left) And the Best Dressed award goes to Ms Karen Ng for dressing right at every show.

I'm losing the willpower to dress up for fashion

YEOH WEE TECK
weeteck@sph.com.sg

WHEN I first started attending fashion shows, I would be more strung out than the designer.

What to wear? How to wear? And, oh, my hair!?!?

I would be test-wearing the pieces, editing and fine tuning, before I decide on an outfit and take my place in the nosebleed section.

It's amazing how much stress I put myself through to find an outfit no one would notice, for a 15-minute show that usually runs an hour late.

Dressing up to sit in the dark is a my seat gets moved forward the closer I get to the runway less I care about the dress.

I just wear whatever that and black.

Is fashion still even fast? Judging from the crowd at Fashion Festival's opening is.

Maybe it was because DSquared2's Caten twins were in town, or supermodel Carmel (stunning face, gorgeous cheekbones, cellulite on the thighs) was opening the show.