

AUDI FASHION FESTIVAL SINGAPORE 2010

Harper's BAZAAR daily

SINGAPORE

ISSUE #2
THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 2010

YOUR DAILY FASHION FIX Where to be, what to wear, who to kiss!

SHOW OF THE DAY

DSquared2 Wednesday, April 28, 7 PM

For the AFF's opening night, guests entered the tent's crush in their DSquared2 best. In the world of Dean and Dan Caten, this meant tuxedo jackets paired with utility shorts and Timberlands for the men, and plaid shirts worn with trucker hats for the ladies. The duo's sexy, kitschy spin on sportswear is renowned, but if the noir invites were anything to go by, we were in for a surprise for their fall/winter 2010 showing. Dubbed the "Hockey Horror DSquared2 Show", the Canadian duo's latest offering was an amalgamation of Freddy Krueger, Helmut Newton photographs and The Matrix's Neo. Slicked-back hair, scarlet lips and blood-like smudges all over the models' limbs gave the sleek tailored suits, feathered LBDs and latex leggings an ominous feel. Jackets had nipped-in waists while shoes were perched on heels shaped like spinal columns. One leather jacket was dripping with chains, while skeletal hands wrapped the shoulders of another. Carmen Kass worked the runway like a pro—making the final exit of a showstopping black column, with a back decorated by a bejewelled ribcage, a beautifully macabre sight to behold.

"Fabulous! A beautiful collection —feminine with an edge. From the studs to the leather and fur to the one-sleeved dress, I liked it all. I'm looking forward to placing my order!"
KAREN NG

"The clothes are statement pieces for those who dare to wear them. I love all the shoes, especially the thigh-high boots!"
PATRICIA MOK

"I wasn't sure about the blood and all that, but it was interesting. I like the men's clothes a lot. The pants, the jackets and all the chains were just beautiful."
REBECCA TAN

